welcome to the UP Department of Linguistics

The UP Department of Linguistics is part of the University of the Philippines Diliman College of Social Sciences and Philosophy. It was established on August 28, 1922, with Trinidad H. Pardo de Tavera as its first chair. He was immediately succeeded by Otto Johns Scheerer, the first Professor Emeritus of Philippine linguistics, who also founded The Archive, the official publication of the Department. The primary aim of the Department since its founding has been the scientific study, preservation, and promotion of Philippine languages & dialects through teaching, research, and publication.

As a CHED Center of Excellence in Foreign Languages, it is also dedicated to improving the teaching of national languages in Asia according to the needs of the Filipino people.

BACHELOR OF ARTS IN Linguistics

The BA in Linguistics program provides students with training in contemporary linguistic theories and methodologies for linguistic analysis, which will enable them to study languages scientifically for research, translation work, teaching, and other various purposes.

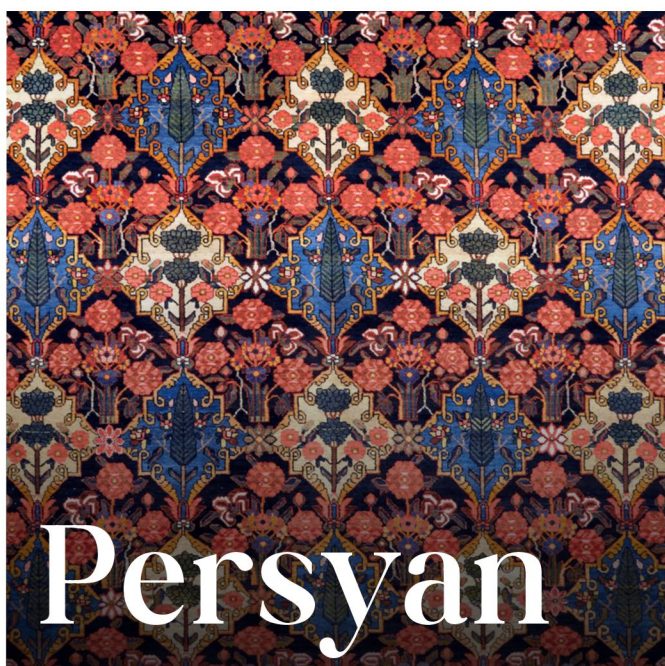

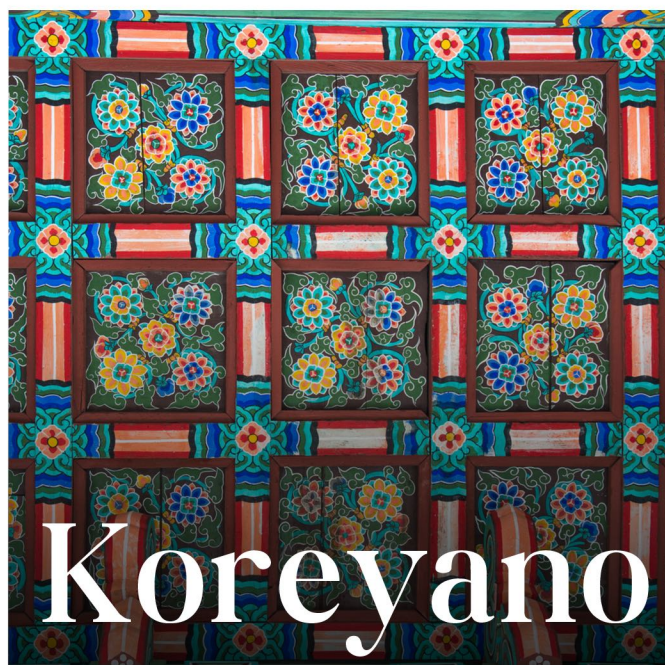

The undergraduate program in linguistics also encourages students to explore interdisciplinary connections between linguistics and other fields, particularly in the social sciences, humanities, and education.

Students can choose from among three plans of study where, along with developing their specialization in linguistics, they can also specialize in an East Asian language, a foreign Southeast Asian language, or select cognate courses in a related discipline.

The BA Linguistics program provides the student with the fundamentals of contemporary linguistic theories and methodologies which will enable them to study language scientifically for translation work, teaching, and research.
